To the Inhabitants of Windham:

In presenting their fifth annual report of the Nesmith Library, it is a pleasure to the trustees to say that it is still the resort of those for whom the donor intended it; and though the number of volumes taken from it the past year is some less than the previous year, this should not be construed as any certain evidence of a decline of interest in the library, for the circumstances of the people are not always equally favorable for reading, when their interest in it may be the same or increasing. The librarian still faithfully discharges her duty, as the excellent condition of the library evinces.

Within the year a second supplement has been published for the convenience of patrons, printed in our own town and by one of our own sons, and for mechanical execution comparing favorably with the first.

The trustees think it will be found that the value, as well as the number of volumes, is steadily though slowly increasing, as it is their care and study, with the limited amount of funds at their disposal, to select the choicest and most valuable books that can be obtained, such as will meet the wants of all classes, and be of permanent as well as temporary interest. If the town was to add to the funds for increasing it by an appropriation, occasionally, of one or two hundred dollars, we think it would be a wise and useful investment of funds; for the more attractive we can render the fine side of home by valuable and interesting books to employ leisure hours, the more we subserve our own interests and those of our posterity by the intelligence, enterprize and virtue which such influences promote.

SCHOOL REPORT.

The School Committee of Windham present the following report of the schools for the year 1875-6.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

The Summer term of this school was taught by Miss E. L. Kimball of Salera. Miss K. brought to this school a large experience in teaching, and the reputation of a successful teacher, which she in good measure sustained, although there was some dissatisfaction with her method of instruction, her theory being to aid scholars in their studies only so far as necessary to stimulate them to self-exertion, and not so far as to supercede this, which is doubtless the true theory for making thorough scholars. Perhaps the scale was not always evenly balanced, and very likely from this seeming unwillingness to aid arose the impression with some of her inability to aid, which was we think a mistaken one. The order of the school was good, though some of the modes of discipline adopted were exceptionable. But the teacher labored faithfully, and a good degree of progress was made by the scholars generally in their studies.

The Winter term was taught by Dr. Henry S. Davis of this town. The school opened with 39 scholars—the largest number for some years; and the appearance of the school at its opening indicated, what has proved to be, a successful school. The knowledge and zeal which the teacher brought to his work inspired the scholars, large and small, with an interest in their studies, and led to a good degree of advancement. In consequence of contagious sickness in the district, near the close of the term, the school was suspended for two weeks, but was resumed and finished.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

The three terms of this school were taught by the same teacher, Miss Mary E. Reynolds of this town, the same who taught it the last year. It is not always that a teacher sustains her reputation for teaching so well during six successive terms in the same school as Miss R. has done. At the close of the last term, as well as previous ones, there was furnished to the committee as well as visitors evidence of her skill, zeal and success in teaching, that was very gratifying to witness. The order and deportment of the school, as well as the advancement in studies, reflected credit on the scholars as well as on their teacher. To other exercises she added singing with interest and profit.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

The teacher of the Summer term of this school was Mr. F. J. Hughes of this town. It was interesting to notice at the opening of the school how entirely the teacher had gained the confidence of the scholars, and to find that this had been maintained to the close of it. A male teacher is peculiarly adapted to some schools, and so it seemed in this. Mr. H. interested his scholars in their studies, and under his tuition they made good proficiency. The order of the school was good.

The Fall term was taught by Mr. Horace Berry of this town who entered upon his duties in the school-room with a commendable degree of zeal and earnestness, and evinced, by his thoroughness in the drill and illustration of first principles, his purpose to advance his scholars in their studies in a manner to understand and remember what they had learned. The school under Mr. B. was successful. Good order, and a good degree of interest and progress prevailed.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

Miss Lottie E. Harris of this town was teacher of the first term of this school. Though small, and requiring for this reason more effort on the part of the teacher to keep her scholars interested in their studies, yet Miss H. succeeded well in her work. The school was orderly, interested, and made good progress under her instruction.

The second term was commenced by Miss Harris, but after keeping a few weeks she found her health inadequate to her duties and for this reason resigned her place, to the regret of the committee and district.

Miss Lizzie P. Marden of Nashua was tortunately obtained to take her place, whose success in teaching in previous years in town gave promise of success that was fully realized. The good order, thoroughness, and interest she felt and inspired in the minds of her scholars rendered the result very gratifying. It was evident that the school had made good advancement in their studies.

DISTRICT NO. 5

Both terms of this school were taught by Miss Mary B. Titcomb of this town. Miss T. was conscientious and faithful in her efforts, and was successful in maintaining good order and advancing her scholars in their studies. A larger number of scholars would have added to the interest of both teacher and pupils, as is true of some other schools in town, but small as it was, it was attended with success.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

This school, including both terms, was taught by Miss Emma E. Hanson of Lincoln. Miss H. though a stranger came well recommended as having enjoyed advantages at the State normal school. In her method of instruction prominence was given to oral teaching. This, when not carried so far as to supersede the careful study of text books, but is employed to illustrate and apply what is learned from them, is evidently an improvement; for knowledge, however extensive, is of little practical use if we cannot reduce it to practice. On the contrary, oral teaching must not be allowed to supersede the study of books, if we would not make superficial scholars. Miss H. endeavored to confine the two as they should be, though perhaps, in her zeal to advance her scholars, leaned a little too much to the oral side. She was earnest and untiring in her efforts to infuse into the minds of her scholars an interest in their studies, and under her instruction they made good improvement. This was especially true of some classes. The order of the school was good, though not perfect; and its appearance at the close, was very creditable to the teacher and scholars.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

The teacher of this school, having but one term in the year, was Miss Ella A. White of Derry. It is very difficult for any teacher to sustain an interest in so small a school as this, yet Miss W. evidently discharged her duty to the few she had to instruct; and the scholars were orderly and gave good evidence of improvement in their studies.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The general condition of the schools of the town compares favorably with that of last year; and this is a notice able fact when it is remembered that ten out of the four-teen terms were taught by teachers belonging to our own town, while it was as six to ten last year.

The good example set by Districts Nos. 2 and 7 in improving their school-houses has been followed during the year by District No. 6 having repainted their school-house, and thus adding much to its appearance, suggesting a similar improvement to that of No. 3, besides repairs needed within, which it is hoped will be made.

Another improvement that the committee would earnestly recommend to every district is to supply the teacher's desk with an Unabridged Dictionary of the English language, for the benefit of both teacher and scholars. A few of the desks are already supplied, but there should be no exceptions. Ten dollars could not be better invested by any district.

The attention of prudential committees is called to the condition of the blackboards in the school-houses, some of them needing new ones, or to have the old ones repainted, especially in No. 2.

The attention of prudential committees is also called to their duty of notifying the superintending committee of the time when schools close, as well as when they begin. The failure of the committee in one instance this year to visit the school before it closed was due to the fact that he was not informed of the day of its closing. It must not be assumed that this day is known to the committee because it is known to the district.

It is gratifying to find so much interest manifested by parents and friends in the schools, as appears from the "Visitors' Register," especially this year in Districts No's 2, 4, 5 and 6. Parents and all lovers of education should encourage the teacher, as well as the scholars, in their work, by visiting the schools, speaking words of sympathy and encouragement, and giving them their cordial co operation and support.

This is the year in which we are called to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the declaration of our National Independence. In looking over our history as a people during this period, and tracing our liberties to their source, as well as the means of their preservation, we cannot fail to see how much of all we enjoy as an enlightened and free people is due to our common schools. Take these away, as some in our land are seeking to do, and the foundations on which the superstructure of our liberties has been reared will be shaken, and ere long we will relapse into ignorance, superstition and oppression. No, as on this year that reminds us of the independence declared and at length achieved by our fathers, we rally around the flag of our country, so let us rally around our common schools, as the pledge and security of our liberties. Our safety, as an enlightened and free people, depends on our virtue and intelligence, with a government like our own—a government of the people by the people; and essential to these are our public schools, as well as the enlightening and elevating influences of Christianity, from which they derive their life and power.

The following are the names of scholars who have been reported, as follows:

Not whispering during the Summer term, and receiving a prize for the same, Lillie Hasseltine, Flora Coan.

Not absent during the Winter term, Frank Knapp.

Not absent nor tardy during the Winter term, George Hasseltine, Rufus Bailey, John Worledge, Abbie F. Emery, Aletto V. Simpson.

Not absent or tardy for the year, Abbie F. Emery, Edwin F. Wilson.
